Constellium showcases its innovative aluminium defense solutions at Eurosatory 2016

Amsterdam, June 14, 2016 – Constellium N.V. (NYSE and Euronext: CSTM) is showcasing its innovative aluminium defense solutions at Eurosatory 2016, the world's largest exhibition of land and air-land defense and security. The exhibition is currently being held in Paris, France.

For the last four years, Constellium has been expanding its global armor portfolio. Thanks to a tireless focus on research and innovation, Constellium now offers an extensive aluminium product range for armored vehicle and turret hulls, appliqué armor kits, underbelly armor kits as well as bridging and pioneering vehicles. As an illustration, the KEIKOR® Suite is, today, the highest performance solution on the market combining extreme protection level and vehicle mobility.

In addition, Constellium established a dedicated team of technical armor experts supporting the defense customers from all around the world. Constellium's customers can benefit from its global presence, with a network of plants in North America and Europe, allowing reliable sourcing and supply chain flows.

“We have worked hard to develop best-in-class armor solutions around two pillars. First, we offer new materials solutions, which deliver enhanced performance and contribute to improve protection for personnel and vehicle mobility. Second, we have a fully dedicated team of armor experts to support our customers,” says David Meacham, Vice President of Sales Transportation, Industry and Defense at Constellium. “In 2016, we are proud to say that we have the broadest global offering of specialized aluminium alloys for armor applications.”

The Constellium booth is located at Hall 5 booth 761.
